Thousands Attend Mokena 5th Annual Homecoming

The 5th annual Mokena Homecoming has come and gone into history. The big carnival of fun came to a close Sunday night. It was attended by thousands of visitors, those from the longest distance being Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sass of Bellplaine-Minn.

The big local event was officially opened last Friday night by N. F. Heiman, president of the Mokena Civic Association, sponsors of the Homecoming.

A very large crowd greeted the opening night. Saturday night despite the cool weather the attendance was still greater. There was a big demand for hot coffee, hot dogs and hamburgers and people were seen parading the grounds munching these truly American delicacies.

All the games, rides etc. received a very big play by the good spending crowd. The youngsters as well as the older folks enjoyed riding on the Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-Round and Tilt-a-Whirl.

Sunday afternoon was highlighted with a colorful military parade in which the following participated:

Wm. Martin Post No. 725 VFW and Auxiliary; Cantigny Post No. 367; Joliet, Stone City Post 2199 and Auxiliary; Joliet; Rehfeld Meyer Post 474, American Legion of Matteson; Ridgewood Boy Scout Troop No. 2 and band Rooting tooting Mokena cow boys and Manhattan cow boys.

Following the parade the Joliet Boy Scout Band presented a band concert on the open air dance platform. The entertainment program was a very excellent one and does great credit to the committee who procured this talent. Friday night the pupils of Mrs. Hauser of the Joliet Conservatory of Music put on the program.

Saturday night, Sunday afternoon and night high class entertainment was presented by professionals as well as amateurs.

Now while we are on the entertainment subject we must not fail to stress the very fine job done by "Jimmy" Hart of Joliet as the master of ceremonies. His sprightly, humorous and to the point quips which attended the introduction of the various performers went over big with the crowd, creating much merriment. "Jimmy" is a past master when it comes to this M. C. business and why shouldn't he be? Just look, his mother is an actress in pictures in California and only just recently "Jimmy" himself was in the Golden State and took part in the shooting of a movie.

Walter Houchin of Mokena did a most wonderful job with his loudspeaker system and his radio phonograph which provided a lot of fill-in entertainment. The microphone was also a part of his excellent equipment. Mr. Houchin is engaged in the radio line.

Many door prizes were awarded and Sunday night a $100 war bond went to Mrs. Henry Leonhardt of Joliet and a $50 war bond to Lt. Trusch of Frankfort.

Sunday afternoon the many friends of Herman Lorenz of Mokena were delighted to see him out in his wheel chair. Mr. Lorenz, former mail messenger, has been paralyzed for the past five years and confined to his home.

The exhibits building had a very interesting display of war souvenirs: antiques specimens of canned goods fancy work; etc. Among the antiques shown was a butter churn over a hundred years old, a spinning wheel, a musket 125 years old, a baby chair over a hundred years old.

Just what the total proceeds came to has not been announced as yet as many bills are still coming in, but a very substantial amount will no doubt be realized for the war memorial fund.

Last, but not least, a great deal of credit is due to Alfred Hatch for his never tiring efforts on behalf of the smooth operation of the Homecoming and to his fine corps of assistants. All in all this was indeed a very splendid Homecoming and we hope we shall see as successful a one next year.

Monday morning Mokena had the appearance of a ghost town after seeing so many cars and people here the past few days.

ORLAND LOSES TO LEMONT 7-4

Orland lost their fourth game to the undefeated Lemont team. Art Henke pitched nice ball but had little support from the outfield. Orland has won 11 games and will try for the 12th against Midlothian next Sunday at Midlothian.

LIGHTNING PUTS OUT PHONES

A sharp electrical storm swept the territory northeast of Mokena late Wednesday afternoon and put a number of telephones out of commission.

Interesting Sidelights From Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal. 8-14-45

To the Editor of the Mokena News-Bulletin:

Well, here's that letter I promised to write to you from the "Wonderland City", Hollywood, where I have been visiting my Moms, Mrs. Mabel Hart, formerly Mabel Olivet Walters, "Ollie's" beloved mother. Ida, was "the Belle of New Lenox" in those olden, golden days before the Fair, and her father Joe ran the grocery store in that "Center of the Universe."

I know that you and George Doig were schoolmates of "Ollie" and her sister Mae, and I wonder how many more of them there are around? If this reaches any Old Timers who knew Moms as a harum-scarum youngster of the Gay 90's, and would like to kid her about them, she may be reached at "Ken Murray's BLACKOUTS of 1945", the El Capitan theatre, Hollywood and Vine, Hollywood, Cal., where she and her heart warmingly humorous act, "The Elderloves", have been a featured attraction for nearly four years!

The Revue that mother is in, the internationally famous "Blackouts of 1941-42-43-44, 45" (and land only knows how many MORE years) From the way it's going, Ken Murray, the handsome young "Boss" of the show will get his first Social Security check AT the El Capitan about 1975!

Ken, who originated, staged and produced "BLACKOUTS" was one of Vaudeville's most beloved comics in those dear, departed days... (remember?) An he was one of the select few of "3 a Day Greats" to reach that most coveted goal, a "Holdover" at the Palace in New York City.

Shrewd showman that he is, Murray sensed what ailed the rapidly sinking Vaudeville game, and set about correcting it in "BLACKOUTS", where color, variety, beauty, laughter and SPEED are the keywords. The result? Well, "Life Magazine" and a host of other national periodicals acclaim it the entertainment phenomenon of our time.

The "Leading Lady" of "Blackouts" is Moviedom's most glamorous and highly publicized Pin Up Girl, the original "Blonde Bombshell" and Hollywood's loveliest inspirations for Mr. Petty's curvaceous creations, Marie Wilson.

You've seen her breath taking loveliness in technicolor, heard her tantalizing lisp on radio, but after you actually SEE and TALK to her well, "Heaven Can Wait".

Just imagine a vision of feminine daintiness so heart stopping that it was the original cause of that now famous G. I. two note whistle of surprise and delight, who is cuter than a bucketful of kittens and more real fun than a Halloween hayride! The finest compliments I can pay this generous, warm hearted little lassie, who has performed in more hospital and camp shows than any movie star in Hollywood, and WON the title of the G. I.'s All-American Sweetheart, is to say that she's the kind of kid you hope your only son will be lucky enough to call "Mrs."

Golly, Mr. Editor, I reckon this letter is way too long to print (except in installments!) but, when you get me on those wonderful entertainers who are not only real stars but real FOLKS, like Ken Murray and Marie Wilson, who, despite their fame and plaudits, are just as neighborly as the lady next door who wants to borrow a pound of butter til Thursday, well, I just don't know when to quit!

If you haven't used up all the ink this time, next time I'll send you some notes on "Moms" entitled, "A Gallop'n' Grandma Goes Hollywood" Sincerely yours, Jimmy Hart

SEPT. MOVING DAY FOR TWO NEW LENOX TAVERNS

September will be moving day for two New Lenox taverns. Rubie Tart who has been operating the New Lenox Tavern and Lunchroom at Church street and Lincoln Highway is moving into the Anchor Tavern at Cedar Road and Lincoln Highway about Sept. 15th. He will also operate a lunchroom and serve steak and chicken dinners, lunches, etc.

Herbert Bruns who has been located in the Anchor Tavern is moving into the building to be vacated by Mr. Tart and which Mr. Bruns recently purchased. This move will be about Sept. 15th.

Mr. Tart has been in his present location for the past six years.

TO PATROL RURAL ROADS

A special meeting of the Green Garden "F" men was held in the Town Hall last Friday evening at which time it was decided to resume patrolling the rural roads, especially during the Peotone Fair.

They also voted to start the monthly meetings and social hour to follow, on October 12. These meetings will be held on the second Friday of each month.

Membership fee in the organization is one dollar.

TO HOLD SOFT BALL TOURNAMENT AT FRANKFORT

Manager Henry Harnack of Frankfort announces a soft ball tournament to be played at the Frankfort field on the evening of Sept. 5, 6, 9 and 10. The opposing teams will be announced later.

Bold Daylight Holdup At Frankfort

A filling station located at the intersection of Route 30 and 45 at Frankfort, Ill., was broken into Tuesday night and discovered early Wednesday morning when the proprietor, Henry Heisner Sr., arrived at his place of business.

Entrance was gained by breaking a front window. The prowler must have suffered some cuts as blood was on the glass. The cash register was rifled, and with an exception of a small amount of change, nothing else was taken.

Finger prints were seen on the window panes. The county authorities were notified.

Another theft occurred in Frankfort, this one being Wednesday morning about ten o'clock, when a 1937 Ford sedan, belonging to Wm. Ziegler, a Frankfort farmer, was stolen when he left the car for 15 minutes, while making a purchase at a Frankfort store.

ORLAND GI RETURNS FROM EUROPEAN BATTLE FRONTS

Pfc. Ralph Tilsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tilsey of Orland Township, surprised them when he arrived home last Friday evening after telegraphing them on Aug. 18 that he might be home soon.

He had been on a ship nearing the Panama Canal, when the Japanese surrender news came thru, so the ship turned around and sailed for Boston, where instead of going to the Pacific theatre of war, they were given furloughs home. Pfc. Tilsey was sent to Camp Miles Standish and from there to Camp Grant and then home.

Ralph was inducted at Camp Grant March 5, 1942. He received his basic training at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and special electrical and mechanic training at Chanute Field, at Rantoul, Ill. From there he was sent to Camp Kilmer, N. J., and while enroute on this trip, it being the day before Christmas, he went thru Orland Park, on a train that did not stop at that station.

It was Jan. 13, 1943 when he left from New York harbor on a convoy with the 20th Replacement Battalion and landed at Oran, Africa Jan. 27. They were at once taken inland to St. Lucien where they pitched pup tents in a wheat field and there they stayed for a month and a half. Then Ralph went on a temporary guard duty at Muskagum, about 50 miles from Oran, and there joined the 36th Repair Squadron. This group entrained in April 1943 for Algiers where Ralph worked at an air port at Masson Blanche and at Capo Di Chino.

It was in August 1944 that they sailed for Naples, Italy, where they spent one year doing special electrical wiring on transports and Thunderbolts.

While here, the newspaper of the camp, "The Falcon", offered a trip to the Isle of Capri to the winner of an essay contest. Pfc. Tilsey entered this contest writing on, "Peace Plans" and out of a large number of entries, his essay won him the coveted prize.

He especially enjoyed the Blue Grotto, a sea cave on the Isle of Capri, where the water is always a beautiful blue caused by reflections. He also climbed Mt. Vesuvius and visited Old Pompeii and Herculaneum.

While touring Rome he saw St. Peter's, the Coliseum and the Tomb of the Angel. He visited Florence, Leg Horn and Pisa, once famous industrial city which is now in complete ruins. He also visited several of the old Cathedrals in Naples.

Pfc. Tilsey wears the patch of the 1st Air Craft, the European, Africa and Italy Ribbon; good conduct ribbon.

He has sent and brought home many souvenirs, and colored pictures which he had taken.

At the end of his furlough he will report back to Camp Grant and we hope he will then receive his honorable discharge.

Wish's Recreation New Lenox Changes Hands

The largest business property deal consummated in New Lenox for many years, was the sale recently of the bowling alley in New Lenox known as Wish's Recreation and owned by A. W. Walsh who built the alleys a few years ago.

The property was sold for $30,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Peratti of Chicago, Edw. Walsh New Lenox real estate dealer, acting as the broker.

It is understood that the new owners contemplate improving the exterior of the building with beautiful neon signs. Other improvements are also being planned.

The bowling alleys will be known as the New Lenox Recreation and will open under the new management Saturday afternoon, Sept. 1.

R. I. Spending $8,000 Improving New Lenox Depot

The Rock Island has begun an $8,000 remodeling job on the New Lenox depot. A concrete walk has been extended east of the depot of the same type in use at Midlothian to make it easier for passengers to get on or off trains.

The freight depot platform is to be concreted as well as the freight room floor. The waiting room floor is to be raised a foot and covered with marble. The interior of the waiting room and telegraph office will be remodeled and newly painted and varnished. A furnace is to be installed.

The brick walls of the depot which have shown signs of cracks and loose bricks will also be given a thorough over. The remodeling job will take about 60 days to complete. This is the first time that a major improvement job has been done on the depot since it was built in 1911.

3 Day Carnival Opens In Tinley

This week end Tinley Park will again be the scene of a three day carnival when the VFW carnival sponsored by 12 home town organizations will hold the big event in the Saenger Hall grove beginning Saturday night and running thru Sunday afternoon and evening and Labor Day.

There will be a big variety of games, rides, amusements, etc.

The VFW Auxiliary will serve a lot of good eats and there will be refreshments galore. A swell time for all. Come.

TINLEY PARK FUND DRIVE EXTENDED TO SEPT. 10

The drive for funds for the memorial park has been extended to September 10 in order to allow the solicitors to adequately cover their territory and give everyone a fair opportunity to take part in the raising of funds which will add to the advancement of the community.

Thus far the solicitors have reported very generous contributions from the people contacted. The Recreation Commission is deeply grateful to the contributors for their fine spirit in supporting this worthwhile community project. Reports indicate that the people of the community are heartily in favor of the move to provide Tinley Park with a recreation park which will be for the use and benefit of the whole community.

The soliciting committee has set a goal of $4,000.00 in this drive and with the generosity of those who have already been contacted and a survey of the number still left to be reached. After just a little over one week of canvassing the total stands at $1,000.00. The thermometer has risen steadily and rapidly. Watch this thermometer in the weeks to come and see it near the goal set and when September 10th is here see it finally reach the top.

President Truman Announcing Surrender of Japs

Antennas to Blanket Nation With Television

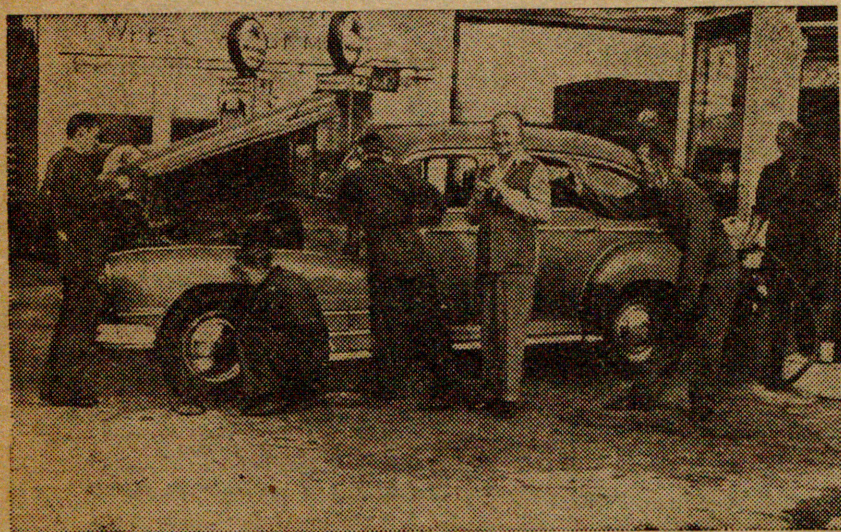

Plans to inaugurate a new system of television and FM radio broadcasting from stratosphere airplanes cruising six miles in the air, as soon as permits and equipment can be obtained, were announced by Westinghouse Electric. Initial flight tests of the system, known as stratovision, are expected to be made soon. Large circle shows the increase to about 103,000 square miles possible under the system of stratovision.

Furlough in Island of Peace

American soldiers enter Switzerland on furlough to spend eight days in the tiny land that remained a veritable "Isle of Peace" in a sea of war for nearly six years of the European conflict. Photo shows a few G.I.s in the Swiss Alps, altitude 10,290 feet.

Unaccustomed Service Returns

With the end of gas rationing motorists have learned how to say, "Fill it up," again. Service stations are beginning to get back into the complete one-stop service with windows cleaned, water supplied, oil checked and tank completely filled. Just like in the good old days. Tires are also checked—and advance orders taken for new ones, when—!

Novel Hits Jackpot

"Before the Sun Goes Down," a novel about a small town in the 1880s by Elizabeth Metzger Howard, has been awarded $145,000 in prizes by Doubleday, Doran & Company, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is her first novel and will soon be published.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, Rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended by the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead is the only white horse ever foaled on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He is a throwback to his great grandsire, the Albino, a wild stallion. His 14-year-old owner, Ken McLaughlin, hopes that he will become a famous racer. Thunderhead is entered at a fall race meet in Idaho. He is very fast but is hard to handle. Rob McLaughlin, Ken's father, sells off most of his horses and goes into sheep raising. Financial worries had created a rift between Rob and his wife, Nell, but they are reconciled. Ken is to go with Thunderhead to the races. Nell finds that she will soon be a mother again.

CHAPTER XXI

Of course, no riding; and there was a new outdoor couch with wheels on the terrace under the pergola where she lay for many hours, not doing anything, her hands clasped behind her neck, her eyes on the sky or the distant hills. Often the hair of her bang was darkened with sweat, and there were tiny beads on her upper lip, and her hands were not steady.

Their father had called both boys to him soon after they got home and had said with his harshest voice and his fiercest eyes, "Don't do anything this summer that will cause your mother trouble or pain or the least anxiety!"

"No, sir," he and Howard had answered instantly. Afterwards, they had looked at each other with a long thoughtful look. This was serious. It mustn't be forgotten. Their father sure meant what he said.

Howard's coming home had been another excitement, because Howard was changed. At least he was changed when Ken first saw him getting off the train and riding home in the car telling his mother and father things about the school in a deep voice that never slipped up any more. He was in his gray tweed suit, and the Fedora didn't look funny on his face now.

When he got into a shirt and blue-jeans with a bandana hanging out of his hind pocket, Ken began to feel more easy with him. And next day Howard stopped sitting gravely with his mother and father and began to tell each other things. Ken made the acquaintance of Howard's two best friends at school, Jake who was a football star, and Bugs. And in turn he told Howard all about his trip to the Valley of the Eagles, and promised to take Howard there as soon as there was a chance, and undid his belt and pulled up his shirt, and showed him the scar from the eagle's talons. It was still impressive.

"You know, Howard! Gee! Sometimes I just can't believe it."

"Can't believe what?"

"That it's all turning out to be real about Thunderhead."

"Real? Why you dope—what fun would it be if it wasn't real?"

"Well, I dunno—"

"Were you just pretending about it?"

"Oh, of course not!" Ken was puzzled about that. How you can be planning a thing in a real way thinking about it nearly all the time, and yet it is more of a dream than a reality, so that when it suddenly comes true and has to be geared in with actual events, hours and dates and weighing scales, and entrance fees and shipping arrangements, it is just as much of a shock as if you never really expected it to happen.

Howard was squinting one eye, and then the other, making a hawk that was floating high up move from one end of a cloud to the other.

"When we get to Saginaw Falls and change these heavy shoes he's wearing to light aluminum shoes they'll feel so light on his feet he'll go like the wind."

Howard held a finger in the air above his face and looked to one side of it and then the other.

"And if Charley Sargent buys Dad's surplus hay and sends it down to Saginaw Falls for the race, then Thunderhead won't have to change to a different kind of hay from what he's used to. Besides, Charley can sell it down there for fifty dollars a ton. He said so. Mountain hay is the best, and down there they'll pay anything if they think it will give their nags a better chance. But nobody can beat Thunderhead!"

Ken went off suddenly into one of his wild bursts of joy, rolling over backwards and trying to stand on his head.

"Can't you do that?" said Howard contemptuously. He got up slowly, stood on his head with ease and nonchalance, then lay down and stretched out again.

Howard sniffed at such childishness. "Say! When shall we go down there—to the Valley of the Eagles?"

"Let's go soon. Golly, I hope that one-legged eagle is there! I'd like to pay him back for what he did to me."

"Maybe we could go this weekend."

"We won't say a thing about where we're going," said Howard. "It might worry mother."

"No. Just for a camping trip."

"Yes. But I bet dad won't give us any time off till we've finished this draw." Howard looked at his watch. "Hour's up. We'd better hop to it."

But it was not until that draw was finished and another one as well, and all the hay put up, that Rob McLaughlin said the boys could have the rest of the summer to do as they pleased in.

Rest? There wasn't any rest. September was here, and there were only four days before the date for which Howard's return accommodations had been taken.

But four days was twice as much as they would need. So they announced that they were off for a camping trip, and Nell put up provisions for them, and Thunderhead and Flicka were hung with bags, rifles, slickers, trying pans, and the boys rode away up the Saddle Back.

Under their feet the bare rolling hills and soft burned grass—beyond, the Buckhorn Mountains, a wilderness of forests and peaks. And an infinite distance away and above, as if born up on the lower crests, a gleaming shape misted in clouds—the Thunderer—beckoning to them!

And how eagerly they answered. Not the antelope nor the jackrabbits fled more swiftly over the plains than the four young things, wild with excitement and freedom, galloping south with yells and shouts and pounding hoofs, and their faces cold in a wind that was sharp and sweet with snow.

From the moment of leaving the ranch Thunderhead was in a state of intense excitement. And when they had climbed the Saddle Back and headed south, his wild eyes and his nostrils and his pricked ears never ceased exploring those mountains ahead of them. His mountains! His valley!—from which high fences and stern masters had kept him for a year.

He was hard to hold when the smell of the river reached them. Ken let him go and he galloped on the little trail he had made himself until they rounded the hill and the Silver Plume river came into view. While the horses watered, the boys debated whether they should stop and fish, or try to complete the trip that night; and because of Howard's limited time decided on the latter.

Thunderhead took the lead and they plunged into the mountains. He was filled with a fiery and masterful energy. He had never forgotten; and now that the way was open to his inherited destiny, he was ready and eager for it. His stallion's consciousness had come of age at last.

It was already twilight in the gorge; and under some of the overhanging cliffs and great trees the trail led into darkness. But Thunderhead went swiftly; and when the boys stopped to pause and look and exclaim at the plunge of the great waterfalls or the foaming cauldrons of whitewater, his iron shoe struck the rock impatiently, and his strident neigh tore the thunderous roar of the river.

The scent was getting stronger, and it maddened him with joy. It was the scent of a destiny, of a life, of an overwhelming emotion. For not under the saddle or running obediently around a track, but here in these mountains lay his whole existence and he had carried the flame of it in his consciousness for a year.

That evening they pitched camp in the park-like grounds not far from the base of the valley rampart.

Picketed with Flicka below the camp Thunderhead did not lie down and sleep as a young horse should. Only older horses, who no longer have growing pains, sleep standing on their feet. But Thunderhead stood all night long, his body quivering, turned to that rampart and the pass into the valley, his ears pricked to catch the faintest sound.

He knew it immediately when, in the early dawn, a group of mares and colts drifted through the pass to graze in the park here below the rampart. He nickered and started to run to them, but was pulled up by his picket rope and stood there pawing impatiently, nickering again and again.

Flicka woke up and was also seized by the excitement of meeting strangers. Thunderhead ran around the circle allowed him by his picket rope. He backed away, lowered his head and gave it a few shakes, pulling at the rope. But his training had been thorough. It was now almost a physical impossibility for him to fight a head rope. He plunged a bit, and then reared up, pawing the air. When he came down he whirled and looked at those mares again—just dark shadows in the vague gray dawn—then he dropped his muzzle to earth, placed one forefoot on the rope, with a little fling of his head got it between his teeth and bit it through as neatly as he had bitten off the leg of the eagle.

With an eager neigh he trotted off toward the mares, leaving Flicka impatient and unhappy, nickering lonesomely, but too docile to attempt escape.

Ken had been dreaming all night of the playful nickering of horses. He dreamed he was riding Thunderhead on the range in a band of yearlings, but why did they keep nickering so? What was attracting their attention? There came an uneasiness into the dream. The nickering persisted but, as if attempting to present a plausible explanation, the dream changed rapidly. Now he was riding Flicka in the brood mare bunch. And now he was riding in the corrals on the day of the weaning, for that was surely the nickering of young colts—

Ken's dreams became still more uneasy, and he sat up suddenly and saw the dawn and knew where he was and could not understand why the nickering continued even now that the dream was ended.

There was one dazed minute in which he sat there, collecting his wits, brushing the sleep and the hair out of his eyes, and then he realized that off near the rampart was a group of mares and colts with a white horse among them, and that the nickering came from them.

It was just what he had seen on his former visit to the valley except that this was only a small number of mares; and the Albino, for some reason or other, was not behaving like a sensible stallion but was rearing, squealing, whirling around to face first this one then the other, in fact was a living coil of movement and excitement.

But there was nickering closer at hand too, and suddenly Ken became anxious lest Thunderhead and Flicka should be excited by the proximity of strange mares and break away from their picket lines. He flung back his blankets, leaped out of them and ran down stream. It brought him up sharp to see only one horse there. Flicka hardly paid any attention to his arrival. Her ears were pricked toward those strange mares, and she pawed the ground, and it was her nickering that had aroused him.

In a daze, Ken picked up the second picket rope and looked at the end of it. Bitten clean through. He dropped it and rubbed his hand through his hair. That was Thunderhead over there with the mares then, not the Albino! No wonder he had behaved peculiarly. Thunderhead with mares at last!

Ken's mind began to labor. He must be got away from them immediately! The Albino might come out through the pass, looking for those mares. And suddenly panic seized Ken. The race so near! And the least injury to Thunderhead at this late date might make it impossible for him to run.

Now he thought fast. He picked up a nose-bag half full of oats and walked very quietly over toward the mares.

As he drew near, he called Thunderhead softly and held out the nose-bag and shook it. The oats made a rustling sound. That was enough, as a rule, to draw twenty horses at a run. But Thunderhead merely turned his head to glance at him, then gave his attention to the mares again. Now and then he would drop his nose to the ground and half-circle the mares—plunging at them—turning, dodging, snaking them. It looked as if he were going to round them up! Ken became more alarmed. If he rounded them up, he'd get them going and he'd go along with them, and it would be still harder to catch him!

"Here Boy! Here Thunderhead! Come along, boy. Here's your oats—Oats, Thunderhead! OATS!"

Thunderhead paid no attention. With more determination now, he drove at the mares. He whipped around them, got them moving, drove them toward the cleft in the rampart.

Ken stood still, appalled by the realization that the horse had actually taken possession of the mares. They gave him complete obedience, as if the electric power within him had welded them all into a unit of which he was head and master.

Suddenly Ken ran forward again. "Oh, Thunderhead! Come boy! Oats! Come get your breakfast!"

"Hey, Ken! Ken!" rang out behind him. "What's up?"

As Howard came running, Ken looked at him speechlessly. Howard saw Thunderhead driving the mares through the gap, and he too halted.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Surplus Property for Vets

The Surplus Property board has made arrangements through the Smaller War Plants corporation to sell surplus war property to honorably discharged veterans who have entered business or farming in amounts up to $2,500 on A-1 priorities without buying through regular dealer channels.

Surplus items for any commercial, industrial, manufacturing, financial, service medical, dental or legal, or agricultural enterprise with invested capital not exceeding $50,000, owned as sole proprietor by a veteran, or when non-veterans have not more than a half-interest, are eligible for purchase with the SWPC acting as buying agent or clearing house on all purchases.

All sales to the veterans will be made to SWPC under OPA regulations and in no instance will the price be greater than original cost to the government, less allowance for depreciation, obsolescence, etc.

The $2,500 limitation is placed on amount of sales so that a broad and equitable distribution of surpluses available may be afforded to all veterans who apply.

A typical procedure on a veteran's application could be as follows: An honorably discharged veteran living in Troy, N. Y., is opening a plumbing and heating supply business in his community. He needs a light delivery truck, office equipment and other items. The nearest district office is at Albany. He makes formal application in writing to this nearest office, giving all the necessary details. SWPC reviews all factors and decides the applicant has a good chance to build a successful business. His needs are recorded and as the property is available SWPC will purchase the items to fill, as far as possible, all requirements of the veteran. The veteran pays SWPC the amount involved on the purchase of the truck from the surplus property disposal office, either in cash or, in some special cases, under an arrangement of terms.

Questions and Answers

Q.—When a man has suffered wounds in action how is disability rating for pension purposes determined by the Veterans Administration?

A.—The Veterans Administration says that in the payment of service-connected disability pensions the percentage of impairment is determined on available records by a rating board. The percentage of disability is based upon the average degree of impairment in earning capacity, so that there may be no penalty on any individual for ability to overcome the handicap of disability.

Q.—What are the purchase price limitations in the extension of an agricultural loan guaranty under the G.I. Bill of Rights?

A.—The purchase price must not exceed the "reasonable normal value" of the property as determined by proper appraisal. The purchase price must be within the veteran's ability to pay and succeed in his operations. The local certifying committee will have to certify to the Veterans Administration on its opinion as to whether or not the proposed purchase price of the property exceeds the reasonable normal value of the property.

Q.—Do navy chaplains receive medals? Have any been awarded?

A.—Chaplains in the navy may receive medals and decorations. Lt. Gen. Merritt F. Williams was awarded the Bronze Star medal for meritorious service aboard the aircraft carrier Wasp, sunk in the Solomon Islands. Lt. Comdr. Joseph T. O'Callahan, chaplain of the bombed carrier Franklin, has been recommended for the medal of honor.

Q.—Can the mother of an only son request that he be kept in the U. S. and not be sent overseas?

A.—The war department says that a soldier who is an only son is subject to overseas duty if he is qualified. The fact that he is an only son will have no bearing upon his assignment.

Q.—What is a death gratuity for a veteran?

A.—A death gratuity is a lump-sum gift from the government made to next of kin when a member of the armed forces dies. The amount is equal to six months of the deceased person's pay.

Q.—What is the maximum interest rate which may be charged on a guaranteed G.I. Bill of Rights loan?

A.—Four per cent per annum, with the government paying the interest on the guaranteed part of the loan for the first year.

Household Hints

Wipe off the fruit you have bought with a clean, slightly damp cloth before putting it away. This will clean it and check any rot that may have gotten on it from other fruits.

To clean fireplace bricks, cover them with paste made of powdered pumice and household ammonia. Let dry for an hour, then scrub the bricks with warm, soapy water.

Don't throw away lemon and orange skins. Bake them in a moderate oven until very crisp. When cold grate or grind them and store in a well corked bottle. A pinch in a pudding or cake makes a great improvement.

When threading a sewing machine needle, hold something white under the needle and it will thread more easily.

Tinley Park News

T Sgt. Corniel DeValck son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam DeValck of Tinley Park arrived home last Saturday for a 30 day furlough after which he will report to San Antonio, Texas.

He has been in service 2 1-2 years nine months of which were spent in Italy from where he returned. He was stationed in Foggia, Italy on the Adriatic Coast with the 99th Bomb Group of the Air corp. Corniel is an Engineer Gunner on a B-17 and has 28 missions to his credit.

During his nine months overseas he met no one from Tinley Park but did meet Lt. Edw. Lauffer of Mokena in Foggia, Italy. He left August 13 from Naples on the Wakefield arriving in Boston August 22 after a fine crossing. On the ship Corniel saw Joe Machtemes of Tinley Park but did not get to talk to him.

He has been awarded the Air Medal with 2 Oak Leaf clusters, the good conduct medal, and the ETO ribbon with four battle stars.

Little two year old Billy Shelton had the misfortune to break his leg last Friday while playing in his yard. He is at home and getting along nicely.

These unselfish soldiers, they drive 10 and 12 hours daily to speed the redeployment of fellow combat men despite their over 85 point status-form the 3337th, 3338th, 3339th and 3340th Quartermaster Companies, Mobile (TC). They went thru the thick of combat together, and all except the 3338th operates in the AAC Motram which moves men and material for the five redeployment camps in the Mailli le Camp area, near Chalons. The 3338th works in the vicinity of Reims, France.

But their operations nowadays differ from the ones which netted the array of battle stars, as 1st Lt. Nicholas H. Russo, R. 1 Tinley Park will vouchsafe.

They were in Tunisia. Mediterranean ETO area, Salerno, Italy, southern France, Germany.

Aboard the USS Massachusetts (Delayed). Willis M. Guth, whose wife Mrs. Annabelle Guth and four year old daughter Shirley Ann, live at Tinley Park, Ill., has been advanced to Machinists Mate third class.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Miller returned Sunday from a three week's vacation spent in Northern Minnesota. They visited with relatives there, enjoyed fishing and sight seeing. Fish were wall eyed pike and northern pike. They also visited relatives in Iowa City, Iowa. A grand time is the way they put it.

Mr. Frank Clemens is spending a few days with Mrs. A. Clemens and Mrs. Sam Nelson was her guest Wednesday.

Assembly Area Command, France—Amphibious heroes of four D-Days now reap glory as landlubbers.

The eight star battle veterans of the Tunisia to the Alps fight are hauling men and material for the Assembly Area Command, and commendations from transported troops prove they still display the same spirit of unselfishness and determination to do their job as they did in combat.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 26, was:

"MIND"
The Golden Text was:

"Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his: . . . he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding" (Dan. 2:20, 21).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Then answered Zophar the Naamathite, and said . . . Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? . . . And Job answered and said, . . . With him is wisdom and strength, he hath counsel and understanding . . . Elihu also proceeded and said, Suffer me a little, and I will shew thee that I have yet to speak on God's behalf . . . he that is perfect in knowledge is with thee. Behold, God is mighty, and despieth not any: he is mighty in strength and wisdom" (Job 11: 1, 7; Job 12: 1, 13; Job 36: 1, 2, 4, 5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Reasoning from cause to effect in the Science of Mind, we begin with Mind, which must be understood through the idea which expresses it and cannot be learned from its opposite, matter. Thus we arrive at Truth, or intelligence, which evolves its own unerring idea and never can be coordinate with human illusions . . . There can be but one Mind, because there is but one God; and if mortals claimed no other Mind and accepted no other, sin would be unknown. We can have but one Mind, if that one is infinite" (pp. 467, 469).

Expect Increased Activity In Cook County Courts

this will tend to prove a strain on domestic ties, and will test the courage and stability of the American family."

"In September of 1944," Sheriff Mulcahey went on, "I issued a statement to the effect that we'd see an increase in the number of divorce decrees granted by our courts. I predicted then that the total of 12,291 divorces granted during the previous year would be exceeded by at least 1000 decrees. Actually the total for 1944 was 13,337. On the basis of the same calculations, I predict an even greater increase in divorce decrees for the present year. For already, for the first seven months of this year, our courts have granted a total of 9,057 decrees as against a total of 8,232 for the same period the year before. All in all, I expect this office to have a busy time of it during the coming year."

Looking forward to the reconvening of the County Civil Courts on September 4, following the summer vacation, Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahey warned his bailiffs today that he expected a vast increase in court activity during the coming year.

Asked if the war's ending would effect the expected increase, Sheriff Mulcahey said: "Of course, it will have some effect. The reconvening of the courts, coinciding with the ending of the war, and with the gigantic shift from a war to a peace time economy, is bound to result in a considerable increase in civil as well as criminal cases, especially during the first months of adjustment. Men out of work, if only temporarily, housewives relieved of their war jobs, many families living in cramped quarters because of war time housing conditions, young people who were in recent months making big money, all

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hallis are parents of a son born Thursday in St. Joseph hospital, Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kauper, Jr., are visiting with relatives in Iowa.

The Boys and Girls of the Homer Husky Hustlers 4H club attended the annual 4H show at Peotone and displayed their livestock, garden and flower exhibit. The young people received several glue and red ribbons. Donald White, Ralph and Joyce Reiter showed steers; Donald White, Ralph Reiter, Evelyn Hollis, Selwyn and Charlotte Goodman chickens; Adella Reiter, ducks; Rose Bransky vegetables; Anna Mae Bransky, Mildred Jungles, Gloria Welter and Eleanor Kopelman flowers.

In the morning Marilyn Floyd, Eleanor Kopelman representing the Girls Home Helpers club competed in a run off contest on presenting demonstrations. In the afternoon the girls competed again as they were one of the four teams chosen for the afternoon session and placed second.

The Joliet Kiwanis club had donated $50 for the demonstration contests to be divided equally between the clubs enrolled in the agricultural and home economics projects. The teams winnings amounted to $6.25, which will be added to the clubs treasury.

The Community club party will be held Friday night, August 31 in the Homer town hall. The committee Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Voltrath met in the Rodgers home Wednesday night to make the final plans.

The Wayside Workers circle of Kings Daughters will meet Thursday afternoon, September 6 in the home of Mrs. Fred Blodgett.

Lt. Owen Rowley has returned from overseas and is enjoying a 30 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Rowley.

Pfc. William Morrison has returned from overseas on a furlough which he is spending with his wife and mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ingersoll, Sr. were entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner Sunday in honor of their granddaughter, Miss Ruth Ingersoll, who is a cadet nurse and was graduated from St. Joseph's training school.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Konow, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ott have been vacationing with the Simandl's in Wisconsin.

The Woman's club meeting will be held with Mrs. Fred Paddock Wednesday afternoon, September 11. Mrs. Fred Trask will be co-hostess.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3 by 2nd Lt. Erlene Conel

Flight Test Day is one of the Biggest Days in a flyer's career. The trials and tribulations, disappointments and joys, that take place are interesting to watch (especially to an aviation student etc.)

Wednesday, Aug. 22, two Civil Aeronautics Inspectors from the Federal Government, arrived at Rubinkam Airport to ride with each pilot recommended by an instructor as capable of fulfilling flight requirements for a Private or Commercial license.

Twenty-one flyers from the Chicago area—Harvey, Blue Island, Homewood and Chicago Heights signed to go up.

The C.A.A. Inspectors checked each by looking thru the individual log books and in one instance, noticed a student's cross country trip did not comply with a regulation now being strictly enforced: one leg of a triangular course must be at least 50 miles from the flyers base airport. This new enforcement disqualified eight flyers who had been working in the sky for months preparatory to their try at winning tickets. They will wait about a month to try to qualify again.

Inspectors ride with each flyer for about 20 to 45 minutes, carefully judging checking of magnetos, taxiing and airport procedure. Also maneuvers which usually include: 720 degrees spins; 1080's forced landings, pylon eights, various stalls and slow flying.

Watching each flyer land the plane after the test and walk with the Inspector toward the flight office was an interesting study in facial expression. Most of the time it was a cinch to tell whether the verdict was good or 'raunchy'. However one flyer after finishing his test rushed over to his wife, and kissed her soundly. Naturally, it was generally surmised that this signified he'd won his Private License. But when he was asked he said the Inspector still hadn't said yes or no.

P. S. He won his Eagle's wings. Tests are just as strict as ever, if not stricter. Flying to be safe is better off when carefully regulated. Congratulations to Arnold Holt of Homewood, and F. Gately of Chicago, both based at Rubinkam, each for giving an Inspector a ride, that gave him no choice but to give you your Private License!

Liege, Belgium
July 29, 1945

Mr. Semmler:
I'm writing from a cot in the 76th General hospital. I came here yesterday with a 102 fever and terrific sore throat. My fever is down and my throat a little better this morning. I hope to get well soon.

I am at present stationed at Vernerly 3,000 G. I's on rest leave transient troops and M. P.'s were and now only about 300 are here inclusive of our 109th. Plenty of wine, women and song. Prices are high tho. On Wine, Cognac and so forth, Verviers is hardly damaged at all. Beautiful too. Heidelberg, at the Haarlass hotel where I stayed with the 108th AAA was, I confess the most scenic and most beautiful place I've ever been in.

Can you tell me if any of my Buddies from Lincoln Estates got home from over here yet? I'm sweating out a trip home.

When I get home, I plan to publish my two books, "Dawn of a New Day" and "Pleasures in Verse" and start my "pet peeve" a newspaper for Lincoln Estates. Then a year after I return home I am going to make a return trip to Europe. Wish all the gang a hearty hello for me.

And until I see you all again,
G bye now. Your friend,
Ray Murray

Mrs. Betty McLees and family and Mr. James McDowell all of Chicago spent the weekend in the Joseph LaFremiere home.

Chicago and Northern Illinois

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages—

- Railroad Center of the United States... Served by 22 trunk line and 17 belt, terminal and industrial railroads—within over-night reach of 50,000,000 consumers.
- The "Great Central Market"... Retail and wholesale trade of more than eight billion dollars annually.
- Financial Center... More than eight billion dollars of financial assets available to business.
- Adequate Postwar Labor Supply... Skilled and unskilled, for diversified industry and construction—best record for good labor relations.
- 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power... Plesant supply for industry, home and farm.
- Abundant Gas and Oil... Large-volume pipelines direct from country's greatest sources.
- Great Inland Port... The harbors of the Chicago Lakes normally handle more water-borne traffic each year than does the Panama Canal.
- Great Food Producing and Processing Center... In the heart of the nation's richest agricultural lands.
- Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing... Chicago Industrial Area ranks high in the manufacture of iron and steel products.
- Tremendous Coal Reserves... Short haul from great central bituminous fields.
- World Airport... For national and international air transport.
- Geographical Center of U. S. Population... Has gradually moved westward—now located within this area.
- Good Government... Complete and efficient community services.
- Good Living... Fine home communities, shopping centers, recreational facilities, schools, colleges, hospitals and churches.

These are some of the advantages that make Chicago and Northern Illinois prominent in the industrial future of the United States—the first consideration in a choice of industrial relocation. As an aid to business, agriculture and industry, wherever located, we have established a department to assemble and make available factual data concerning this area.

In carrying forward this work, we will cooperate fully with all other agencies interested in the progress of Chicago and Northern Illinois. You are invited to make use of the services of this department. PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

The advertisement shown here is one of a series that will appear in national magazines and newspapers that circulate throughout the country.

In reading this and succeeding advertisements you will see that their purpose is to further the industrial progress of Northern Illinois.

Northern Illinois communities primarily interested in business and industrial development will share directly in the results of this promotional program. Other communities, whose interests chiefly center around residential development, are bound to reap the collateral benefits which are invariably derived from the broad growth of industrial activity in the Northern Illinois area.

Meanwhile, our Territorial Information Department will welcome the opportunity to be of further service by cooperating with the various local organizations working toward the future progress of this community.

SUGAR STAMP NO. 38 IS GOOD SEPTEMBER 1

A new sugar stamp, No. 38 in War Ration Book Four, will be good for the purchase of five pounds of sugar beginning September 1, the OPA announces.

The current sugar stamp, number 36, will not be good for consumer use after August 31. It has been valid since May 1. The new sugar stamp, No. 38 will be good for four months, September 1 thru December 31, 1945.

"This continues the current ration rate of five pounds of sugar every four months," Administrator Bowles said.

"Supplies of sugar in this country as well as all over the world, continue very tight. The Department of Agriculture tells us that there is no prospect of improvement in supplies for civilians this year.

"In fact, stocks are lower right now than they have been at the same time of year for more than a decade. Obviously, we must continue to ration sugar so that all can share equally."

Sugar Stamp 38 is being validated instead of Sugar Stamp 37, OPA said because so many home canners by mistake last year mailed No. 37 to their local War Price and Rationing Boards to obtain special canning allowances. Having sent in their regular Sugar Stamp 37, instead of Spare stamp 37 requested by OPA, many consumers do not have the regular stamp 37 in their War Ration Books. They would lose their next allotment if the stamp were validated.

Book Four Red stamps L1 thru Q1 will become valid September 1. They will be good through December 31.

Maimed Get Noses Made From Plastic By U. of I. Dentist

Lifelike and durable plastic noses, ears, fingertips, and other parts are promised for maimed victims of war or of peacetime accidents through the development of a University of Illinois dental college professor. He makes artificial restorations with a new flexible plastic material more lifelike than any before used.

Dr. Stanley D. Tylman has been working with the material for several years, but withheld public announcement while it and the techniques for its use were developed and tried. In the meantime scores of persons used restorations he made.

Among them are a war worker who would have lost his job had not his mutilated ear been restored in appearance; a taxi driver who could not have worked because of disfiguring damage to his nose and face; a young boy born without one ear but who now appears normal; and a woman whose lost index fingertip has been replaced so well the loss is not only unnoticed, but she can use the fingertip normally.

Official U. S. Navy Photograph

United States Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean areas, will sign for the United States General of the Army MacArthur, for the Allied forces which fought in the Pacific. The USS MISSOURI was launched Jan. 29, 1944. Construction was ordered June 12 1940. Her keel was laid Jan. 9, 1941, at the New York Navy Yard.

Dr. Tylman was inspired to develop the new material by flexible plastic "glass" belts and suspenders. From dental experience he knew the need for flexible materials to supplement hard materials in plates and bridges. With co-operation of the manufacturers he developed the new flexible plastic for dental use.

Carrying his work farther, he used the same material for artificial replacements for facial damage. He explains that dentists, without infringing on the medical profession, are well qualified for this work because they have been trained in knowledge of the face and skull and in the mechanics of making casts and preparing the replacement materials.

"In peacetime there is an unusual demand for replacements as a result of automobile, industrial, and hunting accidents, and the demand for such service will be tremendously increased by wartime casualties," says Dr. Tylman. The Army, and Navy are interested in the development, and the University has a special course to train men and women in this work.

Outstanding Courage of Tinley Soldier Revealed

The kind of raw courage that brought the Japanese to defeat was demonstrated in spectacular fashion by Pfc. George T. Retzlaff, veteran of the 7th Infantry (Hourglass) Division last October on Leyte, according to a War Department release today.

Pvt. Retzlaff, son of Mrs. Sylvia Retzlaff, 163 Cicero Ave., Tinley Park, was a Browning automatic rifleman in the 17th Infantry Regiment when his platoon began an attack across an open paddy on October 28, according to official reports. The platoon made its way across the rice paddy, but then was forced to enter a corn field which contained clumps of trees and bushes.

Suddenly a blistering burst of fire poured into the platoon from two enemy pillboxes well hidden in the corn field only 75 yards distant. Later it became known that the pillboxes were part of a trench system which also contained some 25 enemy riflemen. Suffering heavy casualties from the surprise fire, the assault squads stalled.

Pvt. Retzlaff did not wait for orders. He realized the acute need for quick action. Dramatically, in full view of the enemy, he rose to his feet and moved about 20 yards in front of his staring comrades. He plastered the pillboxes and trenches with the rapid, deadly fire of his BAR, forcing the enemy to cease firing.

He emptied one magazine of 20 rounds from his weapon, then replaced the magazine and continued firing, while his platoon reorganized and prepared to resume the attack. He emptied his second magazine, then replaced it with a third.

Twenty more lethal chunks of metal sprayed the enemy. But when he was inserting his third magazine, the Nips opened fire at him with a machinegun. Three slugs tore into his right wrist. He dropped the BAR and fell to the ground in pain. Still he was not through fighting.

His comrades told how he struggled into position and hurled all three of his hand grenades at the enemy, using his left hand.

Now his platoon was ready to attack again and it swarmed over the Jap defenses taking its objective. Pvt. Retzlaff was removed to the rear where it was found necessary to amputate his right hand. He is now recovering from the wound.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

Friday, June 8, 1945

Dear Citizens Service Comm.

Must take time to write you a few lines to let you know I got the package you sent and was glad to get it and to know that all my friends did not forget the boys yet, but I sure hope it won't be long before I will see you all again. I wish I knew when I was coming home. There are a lot of boys going home already so all I can do is wait I guess.

Well I must thank you for the package and nice Easter card but it sure took a long time to get here but there was quite some time we didn't get any mail at all, but now the mail is coming in again.

We are not doing much of anything now but we were busy just before the war was over in Germany. I sure am glad this is over with and you don't know how much the things you sent meant to us boys.

We are now in Ulm but there isn't some of the German homes and it much left of it but we are living in sure is nice. We have lights and running water and can take a good hot shower, that means a lot. Well I don't know much more to write this time so will close but must say Hello to all my friends out there and hope to see you soon.

So long, as ever your friend,

Dear Friends:
Hello friends, how are you all out in good old Tinley? Its been a long timesince I wrote to you.....I received the stationery that you sent. That's one thing that is always welcome, thanks a million. I have been receiving the Times, its about two months old when I get it but the news is still new to me.

We've been on the go lately. We left the Philippines about a month ago and traveled over 5,000 miles since. I hated to leave the Philippines, it was nice there. The civilians are real friendly. One reason, I miss the bananas, there was plenty of pineapple there also.

I still haven't run across any of the boys from Tinley. I know there are quite a few out this way. I'm a baker now, just got rated a month ago, its a good job too.

Well folks I guess I'll close for this time, thanking you again for the stationery, hoping to be home to thank you all in person soon. As ever

War Crop Output May Suffer If Fertilizer Isn't Moved to Farms

CHICAGO—The serious crisis in rail transportation due to the shift of war traffic westward to speed victory over Japan was cited as a reason why farmers should act immediately in ordering fertilizer for fall seeding in order to obtain delivery on time.

"Railroads are straining to transport peak loads of men and supplies to western ports for the Japanese war, while they are faced with the task of moving an estimated billion-bushel wheat crop this year," says a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "Government officials are on record as saying, "There just aren't freight cars enough for both crops and war!"

"All this means that there cannot be any 'last minute rush' so far as fall fertilizer deliveries are concerned. The tonnage will have to move early if unbreakable bottlenecks later on are to be avoided. Manufacturers are doing their utmost to speed by the war program by turning essential raw materials into the finished plant food, in spite of the fact that they continue to be confronted with labor shortages.

"Farmers can help prevent a critical situation in months to come if they will order their fertilizer supplies now, accept delivery during the summer months and store the precious plant food in their barns until it is used next fall. Since they are the ones who will benefit most, it is to their advantage to act immediately."

"Keep Your Shirt On," Advice to Farmers Who Want More Land

CHICAGO — Midwestern farmers were urged to "keep their shirts on," do some straight thinking and avoid overexpansion through the purchase of additional land, in a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Rising prices have already carried farm land up the road dangerously far toward inflation," the statement declares. "If farmers who have the itch to acquire more land will remember the hangover aftermath of World War I's farm expansion, a good many pitfalls can be avoided and farmers will not jeopardize their future security.

"Instead of buying more land, the soundest investments a farmer can make today for the future, is the purchase and application of mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash," the statement says. "Compared to the current price of farm products, mixed fertilizer is cheaper today than it has been at any time in the past.

"Vast wartime crop production schedules have intensified the need for soil conservation now and in the postwar years ahead. In the gigantic soil rebuilding job that lies ahead, the fertilizer industry will play an important role. It is equipped to meet all of agriculture's coming peacetime plant food requirements, the same as it has met the enormous wartime needs."

War's Most Famous Picture

Winning World War II Food Battle

Plant food boosts grain yield.

CHICAGO—Better farm management during World War II has enabled American agriculture to produce much bigger crops on smaller acreages than were possible in World War I, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The tremendous upswing in agricultural production since Pearl Harbor has taken place without any substantial increase in the total planted acreage," the statement points out.

"The present increase in output has been accomplished by better farm management, by more intensive cultivation, by improved machinery and by the application of more and better types of mixed fertilizers.

"One of the results, however, has been the heaviest drain on the fertility level of existing crop acreages in all our history. Although the use of fertilizer has shown a marked upturn in the past three and a half years, applications have not come anywhere near balancing the quantity of plant food removed by growing crops to meet the wartime demand for food and fibers.

"Thus, the soil's reserves of such essential fertilizer elements as nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are being depleted. To combat this trend, a great soil rebuilding job must be undertaken when the war is over, when labor and material supplies are more normal. The fertilizer industry which has broken all previous production records in the war years is equipped and ready to meet all the demands for plant food which peacetime soil replenishment will require."

More Meat and Milk From Better Illinois Pastures

CHICAGO — Better pasture was recommended as the most effective prescription for stepping up needed wartime beef and dairy production, in a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"No matter how good our livestock are and how their blood strains are improved, they cannot produce and reproduce at the highest level unless they are supplied with an abundance of good pasture," the statement points out.

"Experience on thousands of Midwestern farms has proved that good grass provides the most economical means of making milk and meat.

Need Fertilizer

"Many farmers have demonstrated that good pastures are just as profitable per acre as cultivated crops. They have satisfied themselves that money spent for pasture improvement is a profitable investment. The fact is that no matter how good our cultivated crops may be, we are actually suffering a loss when we neglect to get the proper returns from our pasture acres.

"There is no better place to invest the present war-expanded farm income than in pasture improvement. Mixed fertilizers and lime will return big dividends in the years to come. The fertilizer industry which has reached new production peaks in helping farmers meet their wartime crop quotas, is equipped to meet present as well as future plant food needs for pasture improvement.

"Good grass will be an important factor in the competitive peace years that will follow Japan's surrender. Not only will it reduce livestock production costs but it will be a strong ally in the nation's soil-saving crusade."

THIS matter we are about to tackle may be a trifle over our head, but we'll take a shot at it just the same. It concerns concentration, reflexes and instinct, which at least work together, although entirely different. But they are the main foundations of any winning effort.

Reflex action, as you probably know, is co-ordinated response of eye, brain and muscle to some situation. For example, in boxing the eye sees an opening as brain and muscle respond in a split second.

There's no wasted delay. But as one gets older reflex action gets slower. The eye will see the opening but the muscle usually arrives a trifle too late.

Gene Tunney

As a concrete illustration consider Mel Hein in football. Year after year Mel had a quick flash of what was happening and he was usually on top of the play. He can still see what is taking place in a half-flash, but naturally after so many seasons of wear and tear his legs may not quite get there in time, although it is still amazing how many times big Mel is on hand at the right second.

Instinct and reflexes are something that can't be taught. You have them or you don't have them. Eddie Arcaro and Ted Atkinson will tell you that in any close spot it is instinct that directs the next move, for it must be done in less than a breath.

The instinct and the reflexes of such ball players as Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and other leaders worked perfectly as a rule. They did the right thing subconsciously without any direct conscious thought attached. They rarely did the wrong thing. Jack Dempsey will tell you in his two closing fights with Gene Tunney that he could see openings which he could have used effectively in his earlier years. But he was no longer the Dempsey of Toledo, especially against the cleverness of a Tunney.

Mental Discipline

But concentration is another affair. It doesn't call for the split-second, the powder-flare speed the other two ingredients demand. Concentration demands the discipline of the mind or brain that in turn controls muscular movement. It is one of the rarest of all the competitive species, since it goes with mental punishment. It is something that must be forced and watched. It can never be taken for granted as it may slip from your hold like a greased eel.

To begin with, any extended concentration means punishment.

"One of the reasons I quit tournament golf," Bobby Jones told me, "was that I got tired of taking the beating I had to take through 72 holes of play, where I knew I couldn't afford to take my mind off the job."

Jones was one of the best of all concentrators.

"I find I can hit the ball as well as ever," Gene Sarazen says, "but I can't keep concentrating as I used to. I can't keep thinking through every shot to be played. My mind begins to wander."

Tunney was one of the best concentrators in all sport. Gene worked as hard on directing his mind as he ever worked on his legs or arms.

A few hours before facing Dempsey in Chicago, Tunney read some book—I've forgotten the name. But he could tell you everything he had read in that book. That means the top of mind control—with a million dollars at stake—and Jack Dempsey's punch just on ahead.

Few would believe the number of hours Tunney forced himself to practice this combination. "And it wasn't any fun," he added. "It was the hardest sort of work."

Walter Hagen could kid with you and laugh with you one minute, and a second later concentrate entirely on the shot to be played. Few are that lucky.

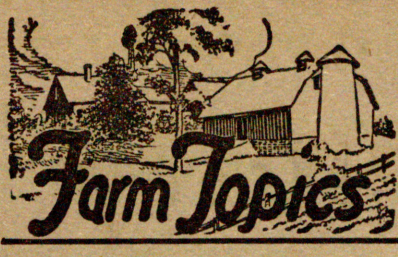

Think of Next Play

Few football players know the value of concentration as Mel Hein knew it. While the opposing team had the ball, he continually faced the possibilities of a pass, a hidden ball, a line thrust, a spinner or an end run. A good defensive back or a defensive lineman must have complete control of his thinking apparatus through every playing second. Hamberg of Navy belonged in this class. Blanchard and Davis of Army have this ability.

Most Notre Dame teams have been keen, alert, able concentrators on the next play. "I want your bodies physically relaxed—your minds always alert," Knute Rockne told and taught them.

Jack Johnson's concentration was almost entirely on defense—Jack Dempsey's on attack. Ty Cobb used to map out certain plays weeks in advance, and then be ready to use them when the right time arrived. He rarely overlooked the right time.

Without concentration you might not be able to use such natural gifts as reflexes or instinct.

Treated Lumber Boon To Farm Buildings

Chemically Treated Durable Wood Available

The nation's treated lumber industry, geared to wide scale production by war demands, is now ready to supply the postwar construction needs of American agriculture, estimated by federal agencies as high as 2½ million homes and 7 million other buildings, including barns.

Census figures of 1940 show that as a class, farm buildings are the oldest of any group in the country, about three years older than the average age of buildings in other categories.

Lumber, always the farm front's most popular and useful building material, will prove even more vital in postwar construction, through the successful application of chemicals to make it more durable and useful. Experiments at the U. S. Forest Products laboratory, and elsewhere, have perfected treated wood that is fireproof, longer lasting, and termite and decay resistant. For instance, pressure treatment with Wolman salts makes wood impervious to termites and decay, and treatment with Minalith makes wood resistant to fire, even open flames.

Wolmanized lumber is being used for such installations in the termite-infested islands of the South Pacific, as it was in Africa. It was also used for the construction of hangars used by the U. S. navy for its sub-patrol blimps on all three seacoasts.

Postwar Machinery Beet Harvester

A one-man beet harvester that tops, lifts, cleans and windrows in one operation is the John Deere new Integral beet harvester. Eight rows of beets are windrowed together, with the tops placed in two windrows of four rows each.

The tractor moves along in low gear, the harvester tops the beets in the ground, automatically lifting them.

Saving Nicotine Can

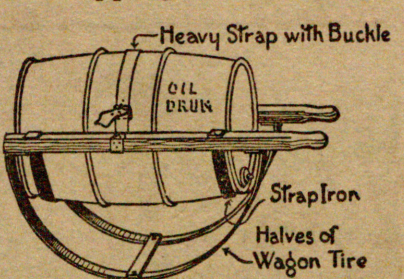

Be Made by Practice

Insufficient nicotine will be available unless extreme care is taken in its conservation. The average farmer wastes about half of the nicotine he purchases.

The following are the reminders on how the saving may be brought about.

- Don't dust with nicotine when weather is cold.
- Don't dust when wind is blowing.
- Don't run the fan too fast.
- Don't drive too fast.
- Don't delay application.
- Spot-dust with a hand-duster.
- Treat the seed bed.
- Dip plants before transplanting.
- Keep plants growing vigorously.

Tipping Oil Barrel

This idea permits easy extraction of the last drop of oil in the barrel without heavy lifting. The rig is made of two stout poles and an old wagon tire cut in half.

Renovate Strawberries

The renovation of strawberry fields should begin immediately after harvest. The heavy mulch should be removed with a hay rake and the sparse mulch cut into the soil.

Before cultivating, apply a complete fertilizer at the rate of 500 to 800 pounds per acre. If the soil is acid, apply lime. Rows should be cultivated to 12 or 15 inches. If an open furrow is left, the roots will dry out rapidly.

EMPEROR ONCE DEMOCRATIC

Twenty-three years ago, this writer, visiting in Japan, got considerable first-hand information about the emperor from a young Japanese Quaker, Renzo Sawada, who had been picked to accompany Hirohito, then crown prince, on a trip to see the western world.

Why Sawada, educated in a Quaker school in Tokyo, was chosen to accompany the young prince on this history-making trip, I do not know, except that the Imperial council of education wanted a commoner of Hirohito's age who spoke English and French to travel with the future emperor.

Never before had a ruler of Japan left its shores. In the past scarcely was the emperor even seen by his subjects. Some idea of his isolation can be gained from the fact that the word "mika" means "awful"; the word "do" means "place"; and the name "Mikado" means "awful-place."

In the old days, priests came to worship at the "awful place," but they never saw the emperor whose other name even today is "Tenno," meaning "son of Heaven." The emperor is synonymous with the sun and from this comes the Japanese flag, with 16 spreading rays symbolic of the rising sun and the emperor.

In those days, the Mikado was the theoretical owner of all the land and all the people and their possessions. He was their God and protector. His lance and shield came from Ama, "the ancestral region." Thus arose the cult of Shintoism which actually means "rule of the superiors" or "way of the Gods." Even the word for government in Japan, "matsurigoto" means "shrine visiting" or "religion."

Modernizing the Emperor.

Thus during most of Japanese history; in fact, up until just after the arrival of Commander Perry in 1852, the Mikado was an ethereal spiritual being, not a ruler; and it came as a definite shock to many Japanese that their emperor-to-be should sail off to England and France to absorb western culture.

In fact, some of the more intense patriots actually threw themselves on the railroad tracks in front of the train carrying Hirohito to Yokohama in protest against the departure.

Naturally Hirohito may have changed a lot during the 25 years since his trip. Naturally, also my friend Sawada was prejudiced in his favor. However, the story of that voyage was one of a young man anxious to mingle with his fellowmen, astound the emperor-worshippers by wrestling on the deck with his aides, get a bloody nose, and dance democratically with the servants of the Duke of Atholl in the same "barbaric" Scotland, which, according to Shinto priests, is made from the mud and seafoam left over after creation of the "heavenly isles"—Japan.

Hirohito even managed to deliver a public speech to the lord mayor of London; and no emperor in all the history of Japan had ever delivered a public speech before. In all Japanese history, furthermore, no emperor had purchased an article of any shape, size or form. In Paris, however, Hirohito insisted on going alone and buying a necktie, and later a pearl for his mother.

Hirohito Goes Underground.

His greatest ambition, however, was to ride on the Paris subway or "metro." Before leaving Tokyo, Hirohito's staff had been strictly forbidden to let the heir to the throne ride on any subway; but despite this, the crown prince bolted most of his staff and ventured underground. He insisted on buying the tickets himself and handed them to the fat lady guarding the gate.

But he handed them to her in a bunch, instead of spreading them out fan shape, so that she could not punch them quickly. All of which brought forth a storm of abuse in metro French, heaped on the head of the future ruler of Japan.

JOSEPH'S PLACE IN GOD'S PLAN

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 39:20-23; 41:14-16, 25, 41-43.

GOLDEN TEXT—Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings.—Proverbs 22:29.

Does it pay to trust God? Does He know about the sorrows and the troubles of His people? Does He have anything to do with the affairs of the world? Men are asking such questions in our day, and we have the answer in God's dealings with men in the past.

The story of Joseph is fascinating from almost any angle, but it holds no more important truth than that the man who honors God in his life will be honored by God (I Sam. 2:30), even in the hardest place, yes, and in the highest position.

Joseph appears before us in our lesson as

I. A Prisoner Prospered by God (39:20-23).

It is surprising how often one finds God's men in the Scriptures in prison. Their determination to live upright and honorable lives ran so counter to the plans of the world that in the inevitable clash there came persecution.

The story of how Joseph became the object of his brother's jealousy and was sold as a slave into Egypt; how he prospered there only to be disgraced and imprisoned because of the lying accusation of an angry woman—all these are in the background of our lesson.

Now that he was in prison, presumably his influence was gone and his usefulness at an end. Not so, for God can be with a man in the prison as well as in the palace.

He soon became the head man of the jail. Imagine a prisoner taking over the keeper's work! Then, too, he met the king's chief butler who, though forgetting for a time, did eventually say the word which brought Joseph back into power (see Gen. 40:14-23; 41:9-13).

The obvious lesson and blessed truth here is that when one of God's people finds himself in a difficult place, he can rest assured that God is there working out His own blessed purpose. Why not trust Him and look for His deliverance?

Joseph the God-prospered prisoner now becomes

II. A Prophet Prepared by God (41:14-16, 25).

The hour had come when a man was needed who had a word from God. In preparation for the awful years of famine the Lord wanted to use the land of Egypt as His great granary. He wanted thus to preserve the chosen nation of Israel, as well as to meet the needs of others.

The vision of the king, plain as it seemed when interpreted, was unintelligible without the key from God, and He had his man prepared. Joseph was ready to be called from prison to speak the right word at the right time.

How important it is that the Lord's messengers be prepared and ready to respond in the hour of His blessing and opportunity! Many eager Christians look forward to the months and years just ahead of us as the greatest opportunity the Church has had to spread the gospel.

Notice that Joseph gave God the glory (vv. 16-25). The one who really knows what is going on in the world is quick to recognize that only the wisdom and the grace of God are sufficient for man's need. Let the voice of boasting mankind be silenced and let the voice of God speak!

Joseph's prophetic word marked him as God's man to carry out God's plan, so we see him now as

III. A Premier Promoted by God (41:41-43).

"I have set thee over all the land," said Pharaoh, and so he had, but in reality it was God who had planned the whole matter. He wanted Joseph there at this time, and there he was.

It may be well to stress the fact that God is interested in government and in the men who hold public office. In fact, the only true foundation for government is found in God. We are told to "be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1).

The Bible clearly teaches that every governmental agency and every public servant, from the policeman on the corner to the President in the White House, is permitted to exercise authority over his fellowmen only because God has ordained that there should be such government.

Clear it is that every right-thinking official of state and nation should be humble, teachable, discreet, and wise in the exercise of his power, and God-fearing in the discharge of his responsibility.

He who reads may apply the truth of God's Word to himself and find personal blessing. It is a rich and powerful and stimulating Word. Let us use it for God's glory!

When a man boasts of having an open mind perhaps it's because it's too porous to hold an opinion.

Fly Away, Fly Away

"Are you an angel, Daddy?" asked Elsie.

"Well—er—not exactly, dear. Why do you ask?"

"Well, I heard Mummy say she was going to clip your wings."

For Parents Only

Little Jill approached her teacher as the other children were leaving for home.

"Miss Blivens," she inquired diffidently, "what did I learn in school today? My daddy always wants to know."

Male Mortality Higher Than That of Females

During every year of human life, mortality is higher among males than females, says Collier's. But oddly enough, during the first year, the percentage of male deaths over female deaths increases under good living conditions and decreases under poor living conditions.

For example, in New Zealand, where infant mortality is 32 per thousand, deaths among boys are 35 per cent higher than among girls; while in Chile, where infant mortality is 248 per thousand, deaths among boys are only 6 per cent higher than among girls.
